The Department of English at East West University organised a seminar series on July 15. Professor David A. Peterson of the Department of Linguistics and Cognitive Science, Dartmouth College, New Hampshire, USA, presented a paper on 'Issues in the endangerment and documentation of Chittagong Hill Tracts Languages'. In his talk, Professor Peterson discussed endangered languages and how students who study in the field of Linguistics can play a vital role in documenting these languages. The seminar was attended by the faculty and students of the department.
